Garbage again claimed attention at last night's meeting of council, and while the solons discussed the vexing problem as they have done many times in the past, the matter is no nearer a solution than it ever was. In fact, the situation is actually alarming, because of the fact that the Sanitary Reduction company is practically out of business, being debarred from dumping any more of the city's refuse evening at the College street railroad in the West End, as has been done, and not being privileged to either bury it anywhere else or burn it.

The manager of the reduction company was notified Monday to discontinue operations until further arrangements were made. It was the supposition that council would settle the matter last evening, but nothing whatever was done further than to discuss plans for future action.

Among the spectators were several gentlemen who protested against the burning of garbage in the West End. Complaint was made that the stench was unbearable and council was asked to have the night soil taken to another locality.

Dr. R. J. Marshall made known the fact that he did not favor the dumping of garbage in the West End, and also stated that he was not in favor of paying the reduction company $135 a month for either burying or burning the refuse. He expressed a desire to have the council make a new contract, but as no representative of the reduction company was present this could not be done.

Solicitor Gaston stated that he thought a contract should be made with somebody living outside of the city limits. President Nice thought the solicitor's suggestion was in the right direction, but other members stated that they were willing to make a contract with any person who could dispose of the garbage and night soil in a way that would be satisfactory.

Every member had a say regarding the proposition, but nothing definite resulted. It is thought that by the time council meets again there will be contracts ready for submission for the disposition of both garbage and night soil. In the meantime, however, it will be necessary for the citizens to dispose of their garbage as best they can.

The Calcutta road street car line gave Mr. Heddleston an inspiration for a speech. He stated that he, as one Enjoyable Anniversary Celebration of the committee appointed to confer with Manager Healy, had been given the assurance by that gentleman that A "membership social" will be given cars would be placed on the line today.

AT THE POWER HOUSE

Men at Work Placing the New Boiler. Only New Cars to Run.

Men were put to work this morning placing the new boiler at the power house in position, and it is thought the task will be completed within a month. The foundation for this boiler has been completed for several weeks and the next work to be done is to place the boiler, which was received over a month ago, but owing to the condition of the weather no progress could be made.

When the boiler is in place all the old green cars will be taken from the road, and nothing but the new cars will be used. It will take an immense amount of power to operate the street railways of the city during the summer, and some rapid work will have to be done at the power house to have all improvements completed before the season opens.

Men at Work Placing the New Boiler. Only New Cars to Run.

Men were put to work this morning placing the new boiler at the power house in position, and it is thought the task will be completed within a month. The foundation for this boiler has been completed for several weeks and the next work to be done is to place the boiler, which was received over a month ago, but owing to the condition of the weather no progress could be made.

When the boiler is in place all the old green cars will be taken from the road, and nothing but the new cars will be used. It will take an immense amount of power to operate the street railways of the city during the summer, and some rapid work will have to be done at the power house to have all improvements completed before the season opens.

Efforts to Check the Spread of Tuberculosis Among Live Stock-Bills Affecting the Jury System-Review of Legislative Work.

Columbus, O., March 12.-[Special.] -Without in any way reflecting upon the integrity of the present or the preceding officials of the board of public works, a strange discrepancy has arisen in the accounts of that department as compared with the accounts in the office of the auditor of state. This discrepancy is especially noticeable in the matter of disbursements. Covering a period of twenty-three years, from 1878 to 1902, the returns from the office of the board of public give a total expenditure of $4,359,388.10. For the same period the expenditures, as shown by the books in the office of the auditor of state, aggregate $4,961,-612.37, or a total of $602,224.27 more. There are also differences in the matter of receipts and loss to the state. The receipts from all sources to the board of public works for this period, as shown by the accounts in that department, reach $2,899,459.44. As shown by the books in the auditor of state's office, they were $2,933,437.59, a difference of $33,978.15. The difference in the loss to the state, or the excess the board of public works being $1,-459,928.66 and in the office of the auditor of state $2,028,174.78. These striking discrepancies are explained by Chief Engineer Perkins of the public works by the statement that the remoney expended upon vouchers actu- Co., Columbus, Ohio. ally drawn by that department, while the figures given by the auditor include not only these amounts, but also interest on bonds, claims allowed against the board by the legislature for land damaged by overflow of the ers for the payment of which were drawn and presented to the auditor without the knowledge of the board of public works and of which it could not therefore have had account. In the matter of receipts, differences, it is said, might likewise occur because of the manner in which the business of the canals is conducted. The fact that these differences have occurred year by year since the canals were first opened as public highways is pointed to as evidence that it ought not at this comment or used as an argument against the canals' future existence.

Of course, the advocates of canal abandonment grasped at this fresh straw and used it with force in the joint meeting of the house and senate on Tuesday when the canal question was fully discussed. It was shown ate, in a great measure, the alarming that instead of costing the state but $1,459,829.74 to conduct the canals stock in the state, but also make imfrom 1879 to 1902, it had in reality possible the sale of meat thus affected cost $2,028,174.78, or $568,246.04 more than the figures in the office of the board of public works would show. There was no attempt upon the part of the defenders of the canal to deny these figures, as there has been no attempt from the start to deny that the public waterways of the state are an expensive luxury as at present conducted. But the claim was put forward that the difficulty lay in the failure of the state to utilize the canals or take advantage of the opportunities which it offers for the raising of revenue. It was said during the argument that had the appropriations from year to year been sufficient to keep the Letters of gratitude from various institutions of the country, to the manufacturers of Peruna, indicate the high appreciation that these institutions have for this remedy.

It now seems more definitely detertime be pointed to as a matter of mined than ever that the final solution of the matter will be a compromise by which only a portion of the canals will be given up at this time and the remainder, if abandoned at all, will first be granted the opportunity of demonstrating their possibilities of usefulness.

Talk of an early adjournment still continues in a sporadic way, but there seems no hope of leaving here before the latter part of April. Former Common Pleas Judge Ong of Cleveland, who was unique in his methods as a judge, shows equally originality in his methods since. He has prepared two bills affecting the existing jury system of Ohio. One of these bills provides that under certain conditions nine jurors may return a verdict in a civil action. When the jury has been out eight hours and the instruct the return of a verdict agreed prevent two or three men from preventing the finding of a verdict. His other bill takes the duty of selecting jurors from the auditor, recorder and clerk and places it in the hands of the common pleas court and county treasurer. The treasurer is to select names for a list from his books and submit spection and approval. By this method it is hoped to have juries made up only of taxpayers. While there is grave doubt as to the constitutionality of the latter bill, the framers believe any danger in that direction has been avoided by adding the words "or other judicious persons" to the section declaring for a property qualification.

It is the desire of the bankers of the state, as shown through their organization, to have the bank laws of Ohio codified and purely state banks placed under the care of an inspector. This is desired both to protect the depositor and in order that wild-cat and uncertain concerns may not be allowed to prey upon the public to the detriment and bad repute of established and worthy institutions. The plan is for the appointment by the auditor and secretary of state and the attorney general of a superinendent of banks, who shall be under the direction of the auditor of state, and who is, with the aid of deputies, to make regular inspections of state banks. The salary of this official is to be $4,000 a year, borne by the banks themselves without cost to the state.

In case Mr. Painter's bill for canal abandonment is entirely defeated, he proposes to introduce another abolishing the state board of public works and placing the control of the state public lands in the hands of the canal commission, to which body he would add the governor, auditor of state and attorney general. "The board of public works is a useless institution of great cost to the state and ought to be removed as a source of expense to the taxpayers," is Mr. Painter's statement, to which he added, "and I believe it will be."

MATTER EASILY EXPLAINED

Columbus, O., March 12.-[Special.] -Without in any way reflecting upon the integrity of the present or the preceding oficials of the board of public works, a strange discrepancy has arisen in the accounts of that department as compared with the accounts in the office of the auditor of state. This discrepancy is especially noticeable in the matter of disbursements. Covering a period of twenty-three years, from 1878 to 1902, the returns from the office of the board of public works, as shown by vouchers drawn, give a total expenditure of $4,359,388.10. For the same period the expenditures, as shown by the books in the office of the auditor of state, aggregate $4,961,-612.37, or a total of $602,224.27 more. There are also differences in the matter of receipts and loss to the state. The receipts from all sources to the board of public works for this period. as shown by the accounts in that department, reach $2,899,459.44. As shown by the books in the auditor of state's office, they were $2,933,437.59, a difference of $33,978.15. The difference in the loss to the state, or the excess the board of public works being $1,-459,928.66 and in the office of the auditor of state $2,028,174.78. These striking discrepancies are explained by Chief Engineer Perkins of the public works by the statement that the returns from his office include only the money expended upon vouchers actu- Co., Columbus, Ohio. ally drawn by that department, while the figures given by the auditor include not only these amounts, but also interest on bonds, claims allowed against the board by the legislature for land damaged by overflow of the ers for the payment of which were drawn and presented to the auditor without the knowledge of the board of public works and of which it could not therefore have had account. In the matter of receipts, differences, it is said, might likewise occur because of the manner in which the business of the canals is conducted. The fact that these differences have occurred year by year since the canals were first opened as public highways is pointed to as evidence that it ought not at this time be pointed to as a matter of comment or used as an argument against the canals' future existence.

Of course, the advocates of canal abandonment grasped at this fresh straw and used it with force in the joint meeting of the house and senate on Tuesday when the canal question was fully discussed. It was shown ate, in a great measure, the alarming that instead of costing the state but $1,459,829.74 to conduct the canals from 1879 to 1902, it had in reality cost $2,028,174.78, or $568,246.04 more than the figures in the office of the board of public works would show. There was no attempt upon the part of the defenders of the canal to deny these figures, as there has been no attempt from the start to deny that the public waterways of the state are an expensive luxury as at present conducted. But the claim was put forward that the difficulty lay in the failure of the state to utilize the canals or take advantage of the opportunities which it offers for the raising of revenue. It was said during the argument that had the appropriations from year to year been sufficient to keep the

The joint debate resulted in nothing beyond a perhaps demarkation of the lines of difference between those who favor the abandonment of the canals and those who are opposed to such a step. It now seems more definitely determined than ever that the final solution of the matter will be a compromise by which only a portion of the canals will be given up at this time and the remainder, if abandoned at which will bring men, who assume to county in succession to Charles all, will first be granted the opportunity of demonstrating their possibilities of usefulness.

> Representative Fisher is giving consideration to the preparation of a bill which he hopes will not only eliminspread of tuberculosis among the live stock in the state, but also make impossible the sale of meat thus affected to consumers. His plan is for the appointment of a state inspector vested with such authority as to give him the right to inspect all live stock of any kind at any place and to order the immediate isolation or killing of any found to have this dread disease. He will be able to appoint needed assistants and thus keep in close touch with conditions everywhere. Moreover, it offenders who, with seeming disregard for public health, sell meat of such a character as to demonstrate that it cannot be done with impunity. Talk of an early adjournment still continues in a sporadic way, but there seems no hope of leaving here before the latter part of April. Thus far but four general bills have gone through the legislature, while dozens are awaiting action. The time consumed in the discussion of matters of taxation, redistricting and canal abandonment have so eaten up time as to hamper seriously the work to which the general assembly would otherwise have applied itself. No session of recent years has accomplished so little in the way of actual results in such a length of time. The general appropriation bill is yet in the hands of the finance committee and will probably not come out before the early part of next month. After its passage, which ought to be quickly done, the way will be cleared for action on other pressing matters and undoubtedly adjournment will come quickly. The coming of spring weather, with the balmy air and songs of birds, is the most powerfor getting through. And yet even with the odor of budding flowers in their nostrils, the members will probably not shake hands for their final has been awarded to Goodlin & Johnleave-taking before the 21st or the son, Toronto, whose bid was $14,989. 28th of April. . . .

Funny things often happen in legislative halls. A few days ago a most honest if unsophisticated gentleman dropped into the old capitol building and, after wandering through the house and senate, went into the house washroom. There he saw hanging from a chain a brush and comb and a they could have been made practically, small brush used for the cleaning of so was placed at the door of a "penny over with care, he turned with a look the equality of states. > The state proposes to take hold with a firm hand and insist that manufacturers be compelled to admit inspecas to the condition of employes. Now instituted. with state authority to back him, the commissioner can demand and receive attention.

Former Common Pleas Judge Ong of Cleveland, who was unique in his methods as a judge, shows equally originality in his methods since. He has prepared two bills affecting the existing jury system of Ohio. One of these bills provides that under certain conditions nine jurors may return a verdict in a civil action. When the is proposed to so vigorously punish jury has been out eight hours and the Cough Remedy, and which has been judge believes it can not agree, he may instruct the return of a verdict agreed to by nine members. The object is to just recognition for an invariable prevent two or three men from preventing the finding of a verdict. His other bill takes the duty of selecting jurors from the auditor, recorder and clerk and places it in the hands of the common pleas court and county treasurer. The treasurer is to select names for a list from his books and submit this to the common pleas judge for inspection and approval. By this method it is hoped to have juries made up only of taxpayers. While there is grave doubt as to the constitutionality of the latter bill, the framers believe any danger in that direction has been avoided by adding the words "or other judicious persons" to the section declaring for a property qualification.

> It is the desire of the bankers of the state, as shown through their organization, to have the bank laws of Ohio codified and purely state banks placed under the care of an inspector. This is desired both to protect the depositor and in order that wild-cat and uncertain concerns may not be allowed to prey upon the public to the detriment and bad repute of established and worthy institutions. The plan is for the appointment by the auditor and secretary of state and the attorney general of a superinendent of banks, who shall be under the direction of the auditor of state, and who is, with the aid of deputies, to make regular inspections of state banks. The salary of this official is to be $4,000 a year, borne by the banks themselves without cost to the state.

> In case Mr. Painter's bill for canal abandonment is entirely defeated, he proposes to introduce another abolishing the state board of public works and placing the control of the state public lands in the hands of the canal commission, to which body he would add the governor, auditor of state and attorney general. "The board of public works is a useless institution of great cost to the state and ought to be removed as a source of expense to the taxpayers," is Mr. Painter's statement, to which he added, "and I be lieve it will be."

The Crisis has at last produced an good one considering that the man who does the thinking for the paper, like the paper itself, is at sea or wanknown destination. That nobody should know what the journal is driving at is not surprising, as the meaning of most of the matter that it prints has to be guessed at. As experts in the use of language to conceal thought the hired men in the employ of the East Liverpool edition of the Canton News-Democrat have no superiors. The only intelligible statement the Crisis makes in its jumble of words is a lie. But it is not to be expected that a professional prevaricator should tell the truth, trying to do so for the first time in its career. We heartily commend the effort the paper has made to say something. The beginning is so encouraging that in time we may hope to see it attempt the Herculean task of defining its own political policy.

For more than six months the garbage question has been before the city authorities, the subject of wrangling and debate at meetings of the board of health and of the council. It is still apparently as far from a solution as ever. Indeed, since the contract with the Reduction company has lately been annulled, there is no provision or even a pretense of one for the disposal of constantly accumulating refuse. Truly a nice state of affairs in a city of 18,000 inhabitants, and hot weather approaching! Some plan must be put in effect forthwith. The only feasible one seems to be to start the old garbage furnace, at least temporarily. That can be done, and should be done, while other projects, if any, are being discussed. Inaction is intolerable and inexcusable.

EVENING NEWS REVIEW, EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO.

It is hardly necessary for the manufacturers to carry stocks in the pottery trade this season, for ware can be sold almost as fast as it is produced. The custom which has prevailed in the trade of accumulating large stocks, carrying them along to a point where they must be dumped at a sacrifice, seems to have been an unwise one and it is hoped that the trade will not soon return to it again. In these days of modern enterprise A vein of iron ore 70 feet thick and it is considered poor policy to stock miles in length is reported to have up until you need money and then let been discovered in New York state. go. MEN ARE SCARCE

Chester Tin Plant Finds It Hard to Get Laborers Enough.

The scarcity of men at the tin mills has almost reached an alarming state. The officials and foremen of the mills never before experienced such difficulty in securing men, especially laborers. For the present it seems enough skilled men are at hand, but it is feared they may become scarce in a few weeks.

The finishing department of the mills is nearly completed and a large number of girls will be in demand next week to enter the pickling department. The only reason that can be assigned for the deficiency of workmen is that there are no men > that because the Rocky mountains have a high elevation the mercury in the thermometer drops down below zero in the winter season and stops there, and that the snow mounts up with the altitude. The fact is that the average precipitation of moisture in the lowlands of the mountain region during the entire year is only 14.15 inches. With such average precipitation there is practically no danger of snow blockades on the railroads, save at a few points exposed to drifts and these points have been amply protected. This is especially true of the lines of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western between Denver and Ogden at all seasons of the year. Facts speak for themselves, and the fact is that travel over "The Scenic Line of the World" has gone on with less interruption from snow blockades during the last ten winters than it has upon the majority of railroads in other localities which are popularly supposed to be more free from such delays than the mountain systems. German Press Teems With Cood Feeling For Americans.

Berlin, March 12.-The semi-official North German Gazette, commenting last evening on the departure of Admiral Prince Henry, of Prussia, from the United States, referred in the warmest terms to the generous hospitality and unvarying courtesy and good will extended to the emperor's representative, and continued:

"In the strengthening of the traditional friendly relations between two great, powerful and progressive nations, in the renewal of the old confidence, we couple in our thoughts. with gratitude, the countless thou sands of American men and women who everywhere gave Prince Henry a joyful welcome, coming from sin cere hearts. It is just these perfectly spontaneous demonstrations of friendship, coming from all classes of a proud people, that give us confidence that the good feeling which has been engendered and manifested both here and over there by the visit to the land of George Washington will continue its influence on the relations between the German empire and the United States, politically untroubled as they are in any way, to the advantage of both peoples.

Beside the semi-official declaration undoubtedly originates in the foreign office, other newspapers refer to the departure of Prince Henry and or in the North German Gazette, which departure of Prince Henry and express their appreciation of the regard of the United States for Germany as evidenced in the honors showered upon Prince Henry.

Washington, March 12.-About 135 members were present last night at the fourth conference of house Republicans, called to consider the question of Cuban reciprocity.

Representative Long, of Kansas, a member of the ways and means committee, opened with an exhaustive argument in favor of the 20 per cent concession advocated by his colleagues of the ways and means committee. The substance of his speech was in part: He argued that the maintenance of a protective tariff was not involved in the proposition of the ways and means committee, but that the policy of reciprocity was. A reduction of 20 per cent on Cuban sugar, leaving the duty on such sugar at $1.24 per hundred pounds, would not enable the Cuban, after paying freight rates and cost of refining, to compete with beet sugar in Chicago, Kansas City or Denver. which are the principal markets for beet sugar.

"It would be the part of wisdom for the beet sugar interests to agree to a reasonable concession that would not injure their industry in the remotest degree rather than to be compelled to accept possible annexation in the immediate future, but when it does come, I want it to come by the free act of the Cuban people."

When Mr. Long finished speaking Mr. Tayler, of Ohio, presented a protest against the plan of the ways and means committee. The protest was drafted at the conference which the Republicans opposed to reciprocity held Monday night. It was in the nature of a manifesto setting out the grounds on which their opposition was based, being largely an amplification of the contention that a reduction of the duty on Cuban reciprocity involved a relaxation of the protective principle. In lieu of the Tawney proposition for a rebate Mr. Taylor offered the following resolution: "Resolve". First, that we reaffirm

The Ballot Will Not Destroy Woman's * Wish to Be Beautiful

By Rev. ANNA H. SHAW

HE fear has of late been expressed by a man that women will cease to wish to be beautiful if they engage in "men's work." By men's work is meant casting a ballot. This man is especially afraid that if women are allowed to vote they will cease to care about pretty clothes.

I have just returned from a three months' trip in the West Indies and South America. In Jamaica I saw tall, stalwart negresses carrying on their heads large baskets of fertilizer, which they emptied in the sugar cane fields. THEIR BLACK FEET WERE BARE, BUT EVERY WOMAN OF THEM WORE A WHITE SKIRT, EDGED WITH HANDMADE LACE FOUR INCHES DEEP.

I saw colored women breaking stone on the road, and all of them were dressed in the same ornamental costume.

Grew Out of Proposed Boer Relief Funds Distribution.

Washington, March 12 .- The house

yesterday entered on the consideration of the postoffice appropriation but, as usual, during debate on an appropriation bill the members who spoke devoted themselves to everything except the bill before the house. Early in the day Mr. Thaye ... of Massachusetts, attempted to take advantage of the division among the Republicans on the subject of reciprocity by bringing forward a resolution to investigate reports that the sugar trust would be the chief beneficiary of Cuban reciprocity. He tried to overturn a decision of the speaker in order to secure action on his resolution, but the Republicans came up solidly against such a course, and he checkmated. Mr. Brantley, 3 Georgia Democrat, made a speech in favor of Cuban reciprocity, and Mr. Meyer, a Louisiana Democrat, one against it. Mr. Hill, of Connecticut, made some remarks on his monetary The feature of the day, however, was a speech by Mr. Burleson, attacking Secretary Hay for declining to request the British authorities to furnish passports to go through the British lines to Rev. Hiram W. Thomas and wife, who desire to go to South Africa to distribute Boer relief funds collected in Illinois. Mr. Hitt, of Illinois, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, made a spirited reply to Mr. Burleson, charging the Texas member with attempting to prejudice the case before the evidence was in., Mr. Hitt pointed out that relief funds could be distributed J. OPPOSED SHIPPING BILL.

Speech by Mallory-Hoar Against Popular Election of Senators.

Washington, March 12.-For several hours yesterday the senate had the ship subsidy bill under consideration. Mr. Mallory, of Florida, made an extended speech in opposition to the measure. He analyzed the bill carefully and held that there was no good reason for its enactment into law saying he believed it would not accomplish the results hoped for it by the promoters. His opposition was based chiefly on the ground that United States treasury to private individuals and corporations without a just return for the expenditure. Prior to the consideration of the subsidy measure a lively debate occurred over an effort on the part of Mr. Berry, of Arkansas, to ascertain when the committee on privileges and elections might be expected to report to the senate the resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote of the people. Mr Hoar, of Massachusetts, indicated his vigorous opposition to such a resolution on the ground that it would subvert the fundamental principle upon which the senate was founded. Little of importance occurred in congress last week.

PRAISE HOSPITALITY SHOWN. German Press Teems With Coed Feeling For Americans.

Berlin, March 12.-The semi-official North German Gazette, commenting last evening on the departure of Ad miral Prince Henry, of Prussia, from the United States, referred in the warmest terms to the generous hospitality and unvarying courtesy and good will extended to the, emperor's representative, and continued:

"In the strengthening of the traditional friendly relations between two great, powerful and progressive nations, in the renewal of the old confidence, we couple in our thoughts. with gratitude, the countless thousands of American men and women who everywhere gave Prince Henry a joyful welcome, coming from sincere hearts. It is just these perfectly spontaneous demonstrations of friendship, coming from all classes of a proud people, that give us confidence that the good feeling which has been engendered and manifested both here and over there by the visit to the land of George Washington will continue its influence on the relations between the German empire and the United States, politically untroubled as they are in any way, to the advantage of both peoples.'

Beside the semi-official declaration in the North German Gazette, which undoubtedly originates in the foreign office, other newspapers refer to the departure of Prince Henry and express their appreciation of the regard of the United States for Germany as evidenced in the honors showered upon Prince Henry.

Caucus Last Night Futile -- Adminstration Would Accept Sibley Conpromise.

Offered Substitute For Ways and Means Plan and a Manifesto-Dick Favored Non-Action-Smith Condemns President's Interferen e.

Washington, March 12.-About 135 members were present last night at the fourth conference of house Republicans, called to consider the question of Cuban reciprocity. Representative Long, of Kansas, a member of the ways and means committee, opened with an exhaustive argument in favor of the 20 per cent concession advocated by his colleagues of the ways and means committee. The substance of his speech was in part: He argued that the maintenance of a protective tariff was not involved in the proposition of the ways and means committee, but that the policy of reciprocity was. A reduction of 20 per cent on Cuban sugar, leaving the duty on such sugar at $1.24 per hundred pounds, would not enable the Cuban, after paying freight rates and cost of refining, to compete with beet sugar in Chicago, Kansas City or Denver, which are the principal markets for beet sugar.

Believes Will be Adequate Return.

He espoused reciprocity with Cuba. he said, not only because it would be helpful to Cuba, but because he believed we would get an adequate return.

The witnesses before the committee on ways and means, he said, stated that with prosperity in Cuba, the importations of that island would amount to 150 to 200 millions annually. This, he argued, was the trade that Cuba offered us in return for concessions on sugar and tobacco. He declared that when the commission from Cuba was prevailed upon to accept the Platt amendment that President McKinley assured them life to Dec. 1, 1903. This proposition that in consideration of its accept. Mr. Tayler, of Ohio, characterized as ance he would do all in his power to secure economic concessions, and said that the commission so reported to the Cuban convention. He presented detailed figures to show that reciprocity proposition, largely on the the Porto Ricon sugar growers had received the full benefit of the free admission of sugar from that island. from which he argued that the Cubans, not the sugar trust, would get

When Mr. Long finished speaking Mr. Tayler, of Ohio, presented a protest against the plan of the ways and mean's committee. The protest was drafted at the conference which the Republicans opposed to reciprocity held Monday night. It was in the nature of a manifesto setting out the grounds on which their opposition was based, being largely an amplification of the contention that a reduction of the duty on Cuban reciprocity involved a relaxation of the protective principle. In lieu of the Tawney proposition for a rebate Mr. Taylor offered the following resolution: "Resolve". First, that we reaffirm

By Rev: ANNA H. SHAW

HE fear has of late been expressed by a man that women will cease to wish to be beautiful if they engage in "men's work." By men's work is meant casting a ballot. This man is especially afraid that if women are allowed to vote they will cease to care about pretty clothes.

I have just returned from a three months' trip in the West Indies and South America. In Jamaica I saw tall, stalwart negresses carrying on their heads large baskets of fertilizer, which they emptied in the sugar cane fields. THEIR BLACK FEET WERE BARE, BUT EVERY WOMAN OF THEM WORE A WHITE SKIRT, EDGED WITH HANDMADE LACE FOUR INCHES

I saw colored women breaking stone on the road, and all of them were dressed in the same ornamental costume.

THE ADVOCATES OF EQUAL SUFFRAGE REGARD STONE BREAKING AS MEN'S WORK. BUT IF THAT HARD AND HEAVY TOIL DOES NOT DESTROY WOMEN'S TASTE FOR PRETTY CLOTHES IS IT LIKELY THAT THIS SENTIMENT IS TOO DEEPLY ROOTED IN THE FEMININE HEART TO BE ERADICATED EVEN BY THE LABORIOUS ACT OF CASTING A BALLOT?

That we have maintained. and will continue to faithfully discharge the obligations to Cuba assumed by virtue of the treaty of Paris and the Platt amendments; and that we faver such commercial agreements with her as her governmenwhen established, may be willing to make and which will be in harmony with our national policy of protection and reciprocity, and

"Third, That no further action be taken respecting the proposition to reduce the tariff on Cuban products coming into this country."

Mr. Sibley, of Pennsylvania, of fered a compromise proposition for a 20 per cent reduction on Cuban prdoucts, but with a limit upon its viduals and corporations without a satisfactory to neither side. Mr. Morrell, of Pennsylvania, advocated harmony and his colleague, ex-Speaker Grow, urged the acceptance of the ground of moral obligation.

BURLESON ATTACKS HAY. Funds Distribution.

Washington, March 12.-The house

yesterday entered on the consideration of the postoffice appropriation bill, but, as usual, during debate on an appropriation bill the members who spoke devoted themselves to everything except the bill before the house. Early in the day Mr. Thaye .; of Massachusetts, attempted to take advantage of the division among the Republicans on the subject of reciprocity by bringing forward a resolution to investigate reports that the sugar trust would be the chief beneficiary of Cuban reciprocity. He tried to overturn a decision of the speaker in order to secure action on his resolution, but the Republicans came up solidly against such a course, and he was checkmated. Mr. Brantley, a Georgia Democrat, made a speech in favor of Cuban reciprocity, and Mr. Meyer, a Louisiana Democrat, one against it. Mr. Hill, of Connecticut, made some remarks on his monetary bill. The feature of the day, however, was a speech by Mr. Burleson, attacking Secretary Hay for declining to request the British authorities to furnish passports to go through the British lines to Rev. Hiram W. Thomas and wife, who desire to go to South Africa to distribute Boer relief funds collected in Illinois. Mr. Hitt, of Illinois, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, made a spirited reply to Mr. Burleson, charging the Texas member with attempting to prejudice the case before the evidence was in., Mr. Hitt pointed out that relief funds could be distributed through the Red Cross or the American consuls and added that it was contrary to international law and usage to allow those in sympathy with the enemy to go through the lines in time of war.

OPPOSED SHIPPING BILL.

Speech by Mallory-Hear Against Popular Election of Senators.

Washington, March 12.-For several hours yesterday the senate had the ship subsidy bill under consideration. Mr. Mallory, of Florida, made an extended speech in opposition to the measure. He analyzed the bill carefully and held that there was no good reason for its enactment into law, saying he believed it would not accomplish the results hoped for it by the promoters. His opposition was based biefly on the ground that it would extend the favor of the United States treasury to private indijust return for the expenditure.

Prior to the consideration of the subsidy measure a lively debate occurred over an effort on the part of Mr. Berry, of Arkansas, to ascertain when the committee on privileges and elections might be expected to report to the senate the resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote of the people. Mr Hoar, of Massachusetts, indicated his vigorous opposition to such a resolution on the ground that it would subvert the fundamental principle upon

PRAISE HOSPITALITY SHOWN. German Press Teems With Coco Feeling For Americans.

Berlin, March 12 .- The semi-official North German Gazette, commenting last evening on the departure of Admiral Prince Henry, of Prussia, from the United States, referred in the warmest terms to the generous hospitality and unvarying courtesy and good will extended to the, emperor's

"In the strengthening of the traditional friendly relations between two great, powerful and progressive nations, in the renewal of the old confidence, we couple in our thoughts. with gratitude, the countless thousands of American men and women who everywhere gave Prince Henry a joyful welcome, coming from sincere hearts. It is just these perfectly spontaneous demonstrations of friendship, coming from all classes of a proud people, that give us confidence that the good feeling which has been engendered and manifested both here and over there by the visit to the land of George Washington will continue its influence on the relations be tween the German empire and the United States, politically untroubled as they are in any way, to the advantage of both peoples.'

Beside the semi-official declaration in the North German Gazette, which undoubtedly originates in the foreign office, other newspapers refer to the departure of Prince Henry and express their appreciation of the regard of the United States for Germany as evidenced in the honors showered upon Prince Henry.

Washington, March 12 .- About 135 members were present last night at the fourth conference of house Republicans, called to consider the question of Cuban reciprocity.

Representative Long, of Kansas, a member of the ways and means committee, opened with an exhaustive argument in favor of the 20 per cent concession advocated by his colleagues of the ways and means committee. The substance of his speech was in part: He argued that the maintenance of a protective tariff was not involved in the proposition of the ways and means committee, but that the policy of reciprocity was. A reduction of 20 per cent on Cuban sugar, leaving the duty on such sugar at $1.24 per hundred pounds, would not enable the Cuban, after paying freight rates and cost of refining, to compete with beet sugar in Chicago, Kansas City or Denver. which are the principal markets for beet sugar.

The witnesses before the commit tee on ways and means, he said, stated that with prosperity in Cuba, the importations of that island would amount to 150 to 200 millions annually. When Mr. Long finished speaking Mr. Tayler, of Ohio, presented a protest against the plan of the ways and means committee. The protest was drafted at the conference which the Republicans opposed to reciprocity held Monday night. It was in the nature of a manifesto setting out the grounds on which their opposition was based, being largely an amplification of the contention that a reduction of the duty on Cuban reciprocity involved a relaxation of the protective principle. In lieu of the Tawney proposition for a rebate Mr. Taylor offered the following resolution:

The Ballot Will Not Destroy Woman's * Wish to Be Beautiful

By Rev: ANNA H. SHAW

HE fear has of late been expressed by a man that women will cease to wish to be beautiful if they engage in "men's work." By men's work is meant casting a ballot. This man is especially afraid that if women are allowed to vote they will cease to care about pretty clothes.

I have just returned from a three months' trip in the West Indies and South America. In Jamaica I saw tall, stalwart negresses carrying on their heads large baskets of fertilizer, which they emptied in the sugar cane fields. THEIR BLACK FEET WERE BARE, BUT EVERY WOMAN OF THEM WORE A WHITE SKIRT, EDGED WITH HANDMADE LACE FOUR INCHES N. N. N.

I saw colored women breaking stone on the road, and all of them were dressed in the same ornamental costume.

THE ADVOCATES OF EQUAL SUFFRAGE REGARD STONE BREAKING AS MEN'S WORK. BUT IF THAT HARD AND HEAVY TOIL DOES NOT DESTROY WOMEN'S TASTE FOR PRETTY CLOTHES IS IT LIKELY THAT THIS SENTIMENT IS TOO DEEPLY ROOTED IN THE FEMININE HEART TO BE ERADICATED EVEN BY THE LABORIOUS ACT OF CASTING A BALLOT?

"Third, That no further action be taken respecting the proposition to reduce the tariff on Cuban products coming into this country.'

Mr. Sibley, of Pennsylvania, of fered a compromise proposition for a 20 per cent reduction on Cuban to accept the Platt amendment that products, but with a limit upon its President McKinley assured them life to Dec. 1, 1903. Washington, March 12 .- The house esterday entered on the consideration of the postoffice appropriation bill, but, as usual, during debate on an appropriation bill the members who spoke devoted themselves to everything except the bill before the house. Early in the day Mr. Thaye:, of Massachusetts, attempted to take advantage of the division among the Republicans on the subject of reciprocity by bringing forward a resolution to investigate reports that the sugar trust would be the chief beneficiary of Cuban reciprocity. He tried to overturn a decision of the speaker in order to secure action on his resolution, but the Republicans came up solidly against such a course, and he was checkmated. Mr. Brantley, 3 Georgia Democrat, made a speech in favor of Cuban reciprocity, and Mr. Meyer, a Louisiana Democrat, one against it. Mr. Hill, of Connecticut, made some 1emarks on his monetary bill. The feature of the day, how ever, was a speech by Mr. Burleson, attacking Secretary Hay for declining to request the British authorities to furnish passports to go through the British lines to Rev. Hiram W. Thomas and wife, who desire to go to South Africa to distribute Boer relief funds collected in Illinois. Mr. Hitt, of Illinois, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, made a spirited reply to Mr. Burleson, charging the Texas member with attempting to

OPPOSED SHIPPING BILL.

Speech by Mallory-Hear Against Popular Election of Senators.

Washington, March 12 .- For several hours yesterday the senate had the ship subsidy bill under consideration. Mr. Mallory, of Florida, made an extended speech in opposition to the measure. He analyzed the bill carefully and held that there was no good reason for its enactment into law. saying he believed it would not accomplish the results hoped for it the promoters. His opposition was based biefly on the ground that it would extend the favor of the United States treasury to private individuals and corporations without a just return for the expenditure.

Prior to the consideration of the subsidy measure a lively debate occurred over an effort on the part of Mr. Berry, of Arkansas, to ascertain when the committee on privileges and elections might be expected to report to the senate the resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote of the people. Mr Hoar, of Massachusetts, indicated his vigorous opposition to such a resolution on the ground that it would subvert the fundamental principle upon which the senate was founded.

Little of importance occurred in congress last week.

DERENERARE REPRESENTATION VIII.—Nathaniel P. Willis and Dayard Taylor.

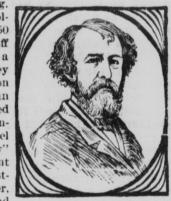

HERE are names in the history of any literature which become faint echoes of their former inportance. Once they were shouted by the multitude; now they are recalled as having a half familiar sound and suggesting further inquiry. If a popular vote had been taken in the second quarter of the century for the most widely admired writer of emotional verse and of light and graceful prose Nathanial Parker Willis would have received the majority of suffrages. He was another New Englander who drifted into the literary coterie of New York in the years when it was the center of attraction for young writers. Born in Portland, Me., with the advantages of a publisher for a grandfather and the editor of a religious paper for his father, the young student at Yale illustrated the law of heredity in his college course by writing poems almost as precocious as Bryant's and of far greater emotional power. To be sure they were Scriptural in tone, but tradition has it that this was not due to an overreligiousness on the part of the poet himself. Yet the same may be said of Young's "Night Thoughts," that solemn book over which our fathers used to pore and fall asleep in blissful unconsciousness of the somewhat worldly mindedness of the courtly author. Still, there is no good reason why the product of a poet's best impulses should not be taken for what it is worth to the reader in reproducing similar emotions in his own mind. Biography may explain literature, but it need not necessarily qualify it. Accordingly these "Scripture Sketches" of the college youth may be allowed to stand for those better moods of reflection and aspiration which alternate with academic surplusages of animal spirits, for whose effervescence no gymnasium was supplied at Yale in 1825. As offsets to what then took the place of athletics in various devices for keeping a high temperature in the old town Willis could write such verse as "Absalom" and "Jephtha's Daughter."

Literature did not offer so many paths to a college graduate turned loose 75 years ago as in these latter days. Then it was, a confident or desperate

youth who dared to trust to the pen for a living. Willis, however, had been commended for his college pieces and had won a publisher's prize of $50 for the best gift book poem. With this send off the recent graduate undertook the editorship of a series of volumes published by that Peter Parley to whom sundry American authors of distinction owed their bringing out. Then The American Magazine was established, to be finally merged into the New York Mirror, to which Willis contributed editorial letters during two years' travel in the old world. These "Pencilings by the Way" were the first valuable specimens of the abundant literature of American travel, often more interesting to the writer than the reader. This writer, however, had the crayon quality in his pen and could put life and picturesqueness into worn paths and dull statistics. Besides, he was favored with passports as an attache of the American minister at Paris, giving him access to courtly circles in Europe and the east. With these facilities the record of travel made by such an observer was a revelation to those even who had been over the ground and a delight to those who had not. The sale of the "Pencilings" was greatly increased by a virulent review in The Quarterly, and a personal article by Captain Marryat occasioned a meeting for satisfaction.

Four years of residence abroad satisfied this travel and society loving American for awhile, and he took up his abode far from cities and men in his cottage at Glenmary, on the Susquehanna, where he wrote the "Letters From Under a Bridge." Then came the financial reverse which in so many instances has been the spur to easy going loiterers along the highway of letters, driving him back to New York and to work on The Corsair, a weekly journal which had the distinction of employing Thackeray as a contributor before he had grown so great as in the days of "The Newcomes." This paper was soon abandoned for The Evening Mirror, the demands of which undermined his health, resulting after a third voyage to Europe in the establishment of The Home Journal and insuring a more moderate pace in literary labor.

The above particulars have been mentioned to illustrate the life of a man of letters in the second generation of the century. It was the period between the news letter and the journal, with the permanent magazine in its present form still in the distance. Whatever was printed was necessarily brief or cut into short sections if a long story, entailing the reader's impatience or expectancy. A volume of such brevities had usually the same choppy character, with the advantage of being laid down and taken up at odd intervals, a point in favor of a fragmentary and discursive author like Willis. Yet in the course of a lifetime he produced many volumes. To read one-half of them would be worse than a waste of time. People did not lose many hours at a time over them when they were published, since they came out for the most part in weekly installments. On the other hand, if one were stranded in the country with "Hurrygraphs" or "Outdoors at Idlewild" or "People I Have Met" or "Famous Persons and Places" for his only reading he would find more hours pleasantly occupied than with some more pretentious books. The range is wide over many lands, scenes and celebrities. Much light is thrown upon contemporary history. The manners of a bygone period in letters and politics in our own country are graphically depicted. Life in other and older lands is contrasted with the simplicity of republican ways and the scenery of the unbroken wilderness with the artificiality of landscapes that had absorbed the labor of generations-to take a few titles at random from a single volume, beginning with letters from Plymouth, Cape Cod, the Delaware, the Hudson, on Edward Everett, Calhoun and Benton, Fenimore Cooper, Daniel Webster, Irving, Whipple, society and manners in New York, shawl aristocracy and a score of similar home topics about which everybody was surprised to find how much Willis could tell them. He had an artist's eye to see the picturesque in familiar objects and the artist's touch to bring out the unexpected beauty or interest of the commonplace.

One of those who were always ready to acknowledge indebtedness to his literary hospitality was Bayard Taylor, a Pennsylvania youth who was blessed with visions of authorship and travel and troubled with scant means and opportunities. He acquired enough Latin at school to give him a clew to the romance languages and obtained the technical education of a printing office. To these he added the larger education of a literary tramp in foreign countries, writing letters to newspapers for his support, and after two years returned to New York for fresh orders. The metropolis was still keeping good its title to the purest literary atmosphere in the country, if not the highest. What remained of the old Knickerbocker school was doing fair work, and new material was added from time to time. Aside from those already spoken of were Morris, Hoffman, the Duyckincks and "certain women of their company," besides sundry Bohemian encampments on the borderland between aspiration and performance, all together causing some one to define the Knickerbocker school as "composed of authors whom we all remember as forgotten." To the servivors Willis, Griswold and Hoffman introduced Taylor, and within three months he had engagements to write for four journals, besides a place as chief of the literary department of The Tribune. He was at home in this diversified occupation, writing 15 hours a day, turning his hand to anything demanded for the daily press, doing his work so carefully and well that he won a higher position and became a stockholder in the company.

California and Mexico next gratified his love of travel and adventure, and an invitation to deliver a commencement poem at Harvard came as a tribute to his poetic talent. Then came the inevitable abuse which follows success like its shadow, and because he happened to be the winner of a prize song for Jenny Lind and 752 other contestants were not be began to wish he had never been born-a poet. Nevertheless he published "Book of Romances, Lyrics and Songs" and started for a long journey to Europe and the orient, during which he wrote letters to The Tribune and became the great American traveler, as much at home in Damaseus as in New York.

As an outcome of his journeyings he published in one season his "Journey to Central Africa," "The Lands of the Saracen" and "Poems of the Orient." "A Visit to India, China and Japan" and "Summer In Sweden" followed.

Afterward he tried his hand at novel writing, producing four, of which "The Story of Kennet" is the best and "John Godfrey's Fortunes" nearest to the writer's personal experiences as a literary worker in New York. He also attempted the drama under the titles of "The Masque of the Gods," "The Prophet" and "Prince Deukalion." Poems he was always writing in his ambition to become a poet rather than be known as a traveler and journalist. It is not the first instance or the last of mistaking one's real vocation.

Taylor left in the abundance of his writings much that instructs and entertains and delights. Doubtless the majority of readers would prefer the multiform results of his labor to greater excellence in a single department of it. As journalist, traveler, translator, dramatist and poet, his range is wide enough and sufficiently diversified to relieve his writing from monotony and retain the reader's attention. Beyond this each one will find before reading far something that will appeal to his love of nature, his interest in things and lands remote or his sense of poetic values. The lesson of all this long and active life is best summed up by Taylor himself: "'Tis not for idle ease we pray, but freedom for our task divine.'

The National Period & of American Literature

then were were recommended VIII.—Nathaniel P. Willis and Dayard Taylor.

HERE are names in the history of any literature which become faint echoes of their former inportance. Once they were shouted by the multitude; now they are recalled as having a half familiar sound and suggesting further inquiry. If a popular vote had been taken in the second quarter of the century for the most widely admired writer of emotional verse and of light and graceful prose Nathanial Parker Willis would have received the majority of suffrages. He was another New Englander who drifted into the literary coterie of New York in the years when it was the center of attraction for young writers. Born in Portland, Me., with the advantages of a publisher for a grandfather and the editor of a religious paper for his father, the young student at Yale illustrated the law of heredity in his college course by writing poems almost as precocious as Bryant's and of far greater emotional power. To be sure they were Scriptural in tone, but tradition has it that this was not due to an overreligiousness on the part of the poet himself. Yet the same may be said of Young's "Night Thoughts," that solemn book over which our fathers used to pore and fall asleep in blissful unconsciousness of the somewhat worldly mindedness of the courtly author. Still, there is no good reason why the product of a poet's best impulses should not be taken for what it is worth to the reader in reproducing similar emotions in his own mind. Biography may explain literature, but it need not necessarily qualify it. Accordingly these "Scripture Sketches" of the college youth may be allowed to stand for those better moods of reflection and aspiration which alternate with academic surplusages of animal spirits, for whose effervescence no gymnasium was supplied at Yale in 1825. As offsets to what then took the place of athletics in various devices for keeping a high temperature in the old town Willis could write such verse as "Absalom" and "Jephtha's Daughter."

Literature did not offer so many paths to a college graduate turned loose 75 years ago as in these latter days. Then it was, a confident or desperate youth who dared to trust to the pen for a living. Willis, however, had been commended for his college pieces and had won a publisher's prize of $50 for the best gift book poem. With this send off the recent graduate undertook the editorship of a series of volumes published by that Peter Parley to whom sundry American authors of distinction owed their bringing out. Then The American Magazine was established, to be finally merged into the New York Mirror, to which Willis contributed editorial letters during two years' travel in the old world. These "Pencilings by the Way" were the first valuable specimens of the abundant literature of American travel, often more interesting to the writer than the reader. This writer, however, had the crayon quality in his pen and

Willis. could put life and picturesqueness into worn paths and dull statistics. Besides, he was favored with passports as an attache of the American minister at Paris, giving him access to courtly circles in Europe and the east. With these facilities the record of travel made by such an observer was a revelation to those even who had been over the ground and a delight to those who had not. 'The sale of the "Pencilings" was greatly increased by a virulent review in The Quarterly, and a personal article by Captain Marryat occasioned a meeting for satisfaction. Four years of residence abroad satisfied this travel and society loving American for awhile, and he took up his abode far from cities and men in his cottage at Glenmary, on the Susquehanna, where he wrote the "Letters From Under a Bridge." Then came the financial reverse which in so many instances has been the spur to easy going loiterers along the highway of letters, ring him back to New York and to work on The Corsair, a weekly journal which had the distinction of employing Thackeray as a contributor before he had grown so great as in the days of "The Newcomes." This paper was soon abandoned for The Evening Mirror, the demands of which undermined his health, resulting after a third voyage to Europe in the establishment of The Home Journal and insuring a more moderate pace in literary labor.

The above particulars have been mentioned to illustrate the life of a man of letters in the second generation of the century. It was the period between the news letter and the journal, with the permanent magazine in its present form still in the distance. Whatever was printed was necessarily brief or cut into short sections if a long story, entailing the reader's impatience or expectancy. A volume of such brevities had usually the same choppy character, with the advantage of being laid down and taken up at odd intervals, a point in favor of a fragmentary and discursive author like Willis. Yet in the course of a lifetime he produced many volumes. To read one-half of them would be worse than a waste of time. People did not lose many hours at a time over them when they were published, since they came out for the most part in weekly installments. On the other hand, if one were stranded in the country with "Hurrygraphs" or "Outdoors at Idlewild" or "People I Have Met" or "Famous Persons and Places" for his only reading he would find more hours pleasantly occupied than with some more pretentious books. The range is wide over many lands, scenes and celebrities. Much light is thrown upon contemporary history. The manners of a bygone period in letters and politics in our own country are graphically depicted. Life in other and older lands is contrasted with the simplicity of republican ways and the scenery of the unbroken wilderness with the artificiality of landscapes that had absorbed the labor of generations-to take a few titles at random from a single volume, beginning with letters from Plymouth, Cape Cod, the Delaware, the Hudson, on Edward Everett, Calhoun and Benton, Fenimore Cooper, Daniel Webster, Irving, Whipple, society and manners in New York, shawl aristocracy and a score of similar home topics about which everybody was surprised to find how much Willis could tell them. He had an artist's eye to see the picturesque in familiar objects and the artist's touch to bring out the unexpected beauty or interest of the commonplace.

One of those who were always ready to acknowledge indebtedness to his literary hospitality was Bayard Taylor, a Pennsylvania youth who was blessed with visions of authorship and travel and troubled with scant means and opportunities. He acquired enough Latin at school to give him a clew to the romance languages and obtained the technical education of a printing office. To these he added the larger education of a literary tramp in foreign countries, writing letters to newspapers for his support, and after two years returned to New York for fresh orders. The metropolis was still keeping good its title to the purest literary atmosphere in the country, if not the highest. What remained of the old Knickerbocker school was doing fair work, and new material was added from time to time. Aside from those already spoken of were Morris, Hoffman, the Duyckincks and "certain women of their company," besides sundry Bohemian encampments on the borderland between aspiration and performance, all together causing some one to define the Knickerbocker school as "composed of authors whom we all remember as forgotten." To the servivors Willis, Griswold and Hoffman introduced Taylor, and within three months he had engagements to write for four journals, besides a place as chief of the literary department of The Tribune. He was at home in this diversified occupation, writing 15 hours a day, turning his hand to anything demanded for the daily press, doing his work so carefully and well that he won a higher position and became a stockholder in the company.

California and Mexico next gratified his love of travel and adventure, and an invitation to deliver a commencement poem at Harvard came as a tribute to his poetic talent. Then came the inevitable abuse which follows success like its shadow, and because he happened to be the winner of a prize song for Jenny Lind and 752 other contestants were not be began to wish he had never been born-a poet. Nevertheless he published "Book of Romances, Lyrics and Songs" and started for a long journey to Europe and the orient, during which he wrote letters to The Tribune and became the great American traveler, as much at home in Damaseus as in New York.

As an outcome of his journeyings he published in one season his "Journey Central Africa," "The Lands of the Saracen" and "Poems of the Orient." 'A Visit to India, China and Japan" and "Summer In Sweden" followed.

Afterward he tried his hand at novel writing, producing four, of which "The Story of Kennet" is the best and "John Godfrey's Fortunes" nearest to the writer's personal experiences as a literary worker in New York. He also attempted the drama under the titles of "The Masque of the Gods," "The Prophet" and "Prince Deukalion." Poems he was always writing in his ambition to become a poet rather than be known as a traveler and journalist. It is not the first instance or the last of mistaking one's real vocation.

Taylor left in the abundance of his writings much that instructs and entertains and delights. Doubtless the majority of readers would prefer the multiform results of his labor to greater excellence in a single department of it. As journalist, traveler, translator, dramatist and poet, his range is wide enough and sufficiently diversified to relieve his writing from monotony and retain the reader's attention. Beyond this each one will find before reading far something that will appeal to his love of nature, his interest in things and lands remote or his sense of poetic values. The lesson of all this long and active life is best summed up by Taylor himself: "'Tis not for idle ease we pray, but freedom for our task divine."

The news of the deposit at the subtreasury of $1,250,000 in gold for telegraphic transfer to San Francisco in connection with the traction merger there called renewed attention to our own domestic money market situation. The selling movement which followed threw the market into irregularity for the rest of the day. The earlier gains were generally wiped out by the first selling on this news. There were some subsequent recoveries, but the market closed heavy in tone and without animation. Of the day's special movements, that in Colorado Southern stocks continued notable. Manhattan was firm on the report of large earnings. Unconfirmed rumors were still heard of a consolidation of Mexican railroad interests. Chicago Terminal stocks were advanced on reports of buying in the interest of Baltimore and Ohio. The Wisconsin Central stocks were active and strong without specific explanation. strength in Peoples Gas was due to reports of measures to contest the 75-cent gas ordinance in Chicago. The manners of a bygone period in letters and politics in our own country are graphically depicted. Life in other and older lands is contrasted with the simplicity of republican ways and the scenery of the unbroken wilderness with the artificiality of landscapes that had absorbed the labor of generations—to take a few titles at random from a single volume, beginning with letters from Plymouth, Cape Cod, the Delaware, the Hudson, on Edward Everett, Calhoun and Benton, Fenimore Cooper, Daniel Webster, Irving, Whipple, society and manners in New York, shawl aristocracy and a score of similar home topics about which everybody was surprised to find how much Willis could tell them. He had an artist's eye to see the picturesque in familiar objects and the artist's touch to bring out the unexpected beauty or interest of the commonplace.

One of those who were always ready to acknowledge indebtedness to his literary hospitality was Bayard Taylor, a Pennsylvania youth who was blessed with visions of authorship and travel and troubled with scant means and opportunities. He acquired enough Latin at school to give him a clew to the romance languages and obtained the technical education of a printing office. To these he added the larger education of a literary tramp in foreign countries, writing letters to newspapers for his support, and after two years returned to New York for fresh orders. The metropolis was still keeping good its title to the purest literary atmosphere in the country, if not the highest. What remained of the old Knickerbocker school was doing fair work, and new material was added from time to time. Aside from those already spoken of were Morris, Hoffman, the Duvckincks and "certain women of their company," besides sundry Bohemian encampments on the borderland between aspiration and performance, all together causing some one to define the Knickerbocker school as "composed of authors whom we all remember as forgotten." To the servivors Willis, Griswold and Hoffman introduced Taylor, and within three months he had engagements to write for four journals, besides place as chief of the literary department of The Tribune. He was at home in this diversified occupation, writing 15 hours a day, turning his hand to anything demanded for the daily press, doing his work so carefully and well that he won a higher position and became a stockholder in the company.

California and Mexico next gratified his love of travel and adventure, and an invitation to deliver a commencement poem at Harvard came as a tribute to his poetic talent. Then came the inevitable abuse which follows success like its shadow, and because he happened to be the winner of a prize song for Jenny Lind and 752 other contestants were not be began to wish he had never been born-a poet. Nevertheless he published "Book of Romances, Lyrics and Songs" and started for a long journey to Europe and the orient, during which he wrote letters to The Tribune and became the great American traveler, as much at home in Damaseus as in New York.

As an outcome of his journeyings he published in one season his "Journey to Central Africa," "The Lands of the Saracen" and "Poems of the Orient." "A Visit to India, China and Japan" and "Summer In Sweden" followed.

Afterward he tried his hand at novel writing, producing four, of which "The Story of Kennet" is the best and "John Godfrey's Fortunes" nearest to Mayor Collins Asks Services of Civic Federation Committee In Settling the Trouble - State Arbitration Board Hears Committees.

Boston, March 12 .- The second day of the great strike of organized labor against the demands of railroad and steamship companies, that merchandise delivered at freight depots by the R. S. Brine Transportation company be not discriminated against, found large additions to the ranks of the strikers. Nearly 6,000 union men were ordered out, bringing the grand total of idle men up to about 16,000. with the prospect of a still greater increase today.

strikes, having bad effect on several other lines of business.

If the Certral Labor union orders men out, the effect would be to paralyze business of all kinds.

The state board of arbitration had before it President Cox and the strike portation council, but no way of setcommittee also waited upon Mayor Collins, where the serious condition by arbitration.

Some of these are sympathetic of affairs was discussed, and he promised his best efforts to effect an understanding between the parties at issue. Deeming the situation sufficiently grave to warrant his taking such action. Mr. Collins sent a telegram to Hon. M. A. the writer's personal experiences as a literary worker in New York. He also attempted the drama under the titles of "The Masque of the Gods," "The Prophet" and "Prince Deukalion." Poems he was always writing in his ambition to become a poet rather than be known as a traveler and journalist. It is not the first instance or the last of mistaking one's real vocation. Taylor left in the abundance of his writings much that instructs and entertains and delights. Doubtless the majority of readers would prefer the multiform results of his labor to greater excellence in a single department of it. As journalist, traveler, translator, dramatist and poet, his range is wide enough and sufficiently diversified to relieve his writing from monotony and retain the reader's attention. Beyond this each one will find before reading far something that will appeal to his love of nature, his interest in things and lands remote or his sense of poetic values. The lesson of all this long and active life is best summed up by Taylor himself: "'Tis not for idle ease we pray, but freedom for our task divine."

CLOSING WAS HEAVY IN TONE.

News of Deposit of Big Sum For Transfer to 'Frisco Had Effect. Tuesday.

New York, March 12.-Wall street sentiment experienced a sense of ralief when the reports of the early London market were received. The calmness of the London market led to some covering by shorts in this market, which were put out late on Monday in hope of covering at a profit on London selling Tuesday norning. There were renewed movement in some of the minor specialties wich have been favorites for some time past. The news of the deposit at the subtreasury of $1,250,000 in gold for telegraphic transfer to San Francisco in connection with the traction merger there called renewed attention to our own domestic money market situation. The selling movement which followed threw the market into irregularity for the rest of the day. The earlier gains were generally wiped out by the first selling on this news. There were some subsequent recoveries, but the market closed heavy in tone and without animation. Of the day's special movements, that in Colorado Southern stocks continued notable. Manhattan was firm on the report of large earnings. Unconfirmed rumors were still heard of a consolidation of Mexican railroad interests. Chicago Terminal stocks were advanced on reports of buying in the interest of Baltimore and Ohio. The Wisconsin Central stocks were active and strong without specific explanation. strength in Peoples Gas was due to reports of measures to contest the 75-cent gas ordinance in Chicago. There were a few other wide movements of less importance and which Busy persons, forced to defend themselves from interminable talkers who have little to say, can appreciate a hint to which Henry IV. of France once resorted. A parliamentary deputy called upon him and made a long speech.

The king listened patiently for a time, then he decided that his visitor would do well to condense his remarks. He took him by the hand and led him to where they could see the gallery of the Louvre.

"What do you think of that building? When it is finished, it will be a good thing, will it not?"

A few years ago the Harvard library found that the engraved labels which it pastes on the inside of the covers of its books as marks of its some of the less used volumes. The older book plates, it appears, are highly prized by collectors, and some of them are particularly valuable for their ing in this country. These were naturally the special prey of the thief. Detectives took the matter in hand, and the offender was discovered with full evidence of his guilt upon him. He confessed to stealing the library's property and to having it in his possession. By the time the matter reached the courts the greater part of the book plates had been restored, the thief having settled satisfactorily with the persons to whom he had sold or given them, and, as the prisoner had repaid the expense to which the library had been put, the college consented to leave the matter of sentence with the court, count and put the other count on file, to be brought up again later if it should be desirable, meanwhile placing the offender under $1,000 bonds for his future appearance if he should be want-

FAD BECAME A MANIA.

Tempted by Harvard Book Plates, & Doctor Turned Thief.

It would seem from the experience of the Harvard college library that book plate collecting may sometimes develop into a dangerous and expensive mania. A few years ago the Harvard library found that the engraved labels which it pastes on the inside of the covers of its books as marks of its ownership were disappearing from some of the less used volumes. The older book plates, it appears, are highly prized by collectors, and some of them are particularly valuable for their artistic merit as well as for interesting associations with early book collecting in this country. These were naturally the special prey of the thief.

Detectives took the matter in hand, and the offender was discovered with full evidence of his guilt upon him. He confessed to stealing the library's property and to having it in his possession. By the time the matter reached the courts the greater part of the book plates had been restored, the thief having settled satisfactorily with the persons to whom he had sold or given them, and, as the prisoner had repaid the expense to which the library had been put, the college consented to leave the matter of sentence with the court, which imposed a fine of $150 on one count and put the other count on file, to be brought up again later if it should be desirable, meanwhile placing the offender under $1,000 bonds for his future appearance if he should be want-

Flourishing Organization Elects to be carried out. New Officers-New Scale Satisfactory.

The plasterers' union is in a flourishing condition. It will be remembered that during the winter season the organization resolved to ask for an increase of wages, and when the scale was formed it read that they should receive $4 per day for nine hours, with eight hours Saturday, in stead of $3.50 which they had been re ceiving for the same hours.

The scale was to become operative March 1 and when the time arrived no opposition was made by the employers. The union met last evening and held the annual election of officers as follows:

It Was Attached to a Wheelbarrow And Drew Him Under a Horse's Feet.

A boy aged about 14 years, and whose name could not be learned, narrowly escaped being injured and possibly killed at 5:30 o'clock last evening at the College street railroad crossing.

This youth had a piece of wire wrapped about his wrist, pulling a wheelbarrow containing a small stove, while his companion was pushing it. The first boy was standing on the west side of the crossing, while his companion and the wheelbarrow were on the east side. The shifting engine was working in the vicinity of the crossing, and after it had cleared the crossing, William Hackworth, driving a wagon containing potters' supplies, started across the tracks to the north side of the station.

Garbage again claimed attention at last night's meeting of council, and while the solons discussed the vexing problem as they have done many times in the past, the matter is no nearer a solution than it ever was. In fact, the situation is actually alarming, because of the fact that the Sanitary Reduction company is practically out of business, being debarred from dumping any more of the city's refuse in the West End, as has been done, and not being privileged to either bury it anywhere else or burn it.

The manager of the reduction company was notified Monday to discontinue operations until further arrangements were made. It was the supposition that council would settle the matter last evening, but nothing whatever was done further than to discuss plans for future action.

Among the spectators were several gentlemen who protested against the burning of garbage in the West End. Complaint was made that the stench was unbearable and council was asked to have the night soil taken to another locality.

Dr. R. J. Marshall made known the fact that he did not favor the dumpthe refuse. He expressed a desire to have the council make a new contract. but as no representative of the reduction company was present this could not be done.

Solicitor Gaston stated that he thought a contract should be made with somebody living outside of the city limits. President Nice thought the solicitor's suggestion was in the right direction, but other members stated that they were willing to make a contract with any person who could dispose of the garbage and night soil in a way that would be satisfactory.

Every member had a say regarding the proposition, but nothing definite resulted. It is thought that by the time council meets again there will be contracts ready for submission for the disposition of both garbage and to dispose of their garbage as best

The Calcutta road street car line gave Mr. Heddleston an inspiration for a speech. He stated that he, as one of the committee appointed to confer with Manager Healy, had been given the assurance by that gentleman that cars would be placed on the line today.

An ordinance was introduced providing for the assessing of a special Chestnut street from Pleasant to John street and to issue bonds in anticipaments.

 AT THE POWER HOUSE

Men at Work Placing the New Boiler. Only New Cars to Run.

Men were put to work this morning placing the new boiler at the power house in position, and it is thought the task will be completed within a month. The foundation for this boiler has been completed for several weeks and the next work to be done is to place the boiler, which was received over a month ago, but owing to the condition of the weather no progress could be made.

When the boiler is in place all the old green cars will be taken from the road, and nothing but the new cars will be used. It will take an immense amount of power to operate the street railways of the city during the summer, and some rapid work will have to be done at the power house to have all improvements completed before the season opens.

MATTER EASILY EXPLAINED

Efforts to Check the Spread of Tuberculosis Among Live Stock-Bills Affecting the Jury System-Review of Legislative Work.

Columbus, O., March 12.-[Special.] -Without in any way reflecting upon the integrity of the present or the preceding officials of the board of public works, a strange discrepancy has arisen in the accounts of that department as compared with the accounts in the office of the auditor of state. This discrepancy is especially noticeable in the matter of disbursements. Covering a period of twenty-three years, from 1878 to 1902, the returns from the office of the board of public works, as shown by vouchers drawn, give a total expenditure of $4,359,388.10. For the same period the expenditures, as shown by the books in the office of the auditor of state, aggregate $4.961 .-612.37, or a total of $602,224.27 more. There are also differences in the matter of receipts and loss to the state. The receipts from all sources to the board of public works for this period, as shown by the accounts in that department, reach $2,899,459.44. As shown by the books in the auditor of state's office, they were $2,933,437.59, a difference of $33,978.15. The difference in the loss to the state, or the excess the board of public works being $1,-459,928.66 and in the office of the auditor of state $2,028,174.78. These striking discrepancies are explained by works by the statement that the remoney expended upon vouchers actually drawn by that department, while the figures given by the auditor include not only these amounts, but also interest on bonds, claims allowed against the board by the legislature for land damaged by overflow of the canals, attorneys' fees, etc., the vouchdrawn and presented to the auditor without the knowledge of the board of public works and of which it could not therefore have had account. In the matter of receipts, differences, it is said, might likewise occur because of | the manner in which the business of the canals is conducted. The fact that these differences have occurred year by year since the canals were first opened as public highways is pointed to as evidence that it ought not at this time be pointed to as a matter of comment or used as an argument against the canals' future existence. The figures are now in the hands of the attorney general.

Of course, the advocates of canal abandonment grasped at this fresh straw and used it with force in the joint meeting of the house and senate on Tuesday when the canal question which he hopes will not only eliminwas fully discussed. It was shown that instead of costing the state but $1,459,829.74 to conduct the canals stock in the state, but also make imfrom 1879 to 1902, it had in reality cost $2,028,174.78, or $568,246.04 more than the figures in the office of the board of public works would show. There was no attempt upon the part of the defenders of the canal to deny these figures, as there has been no attempt from the start to deny that the public waterways of the state are an expensive luxury as at present conducted. But the claim was put forward that the difficulty lay in the failure of the state to utilize the canals or take advantage of the opportunities which it offers for the raising of revenue. It was said during the argument that had the appropriations from year

Especially at this time, just on to a friend: "Gosh, but ain't this a the eve of an experiment to test the usefulness of electricity as a motive power for the pulling of canal boats, come down myself." it was urged that the complete abandonment of the canals would be an unwise and injudicious step. The joint a firm hand and insist that manufacdebate resulted in nothing beyond a perhaps demarkation of the lines of difference between those who favor the abandonment of the canals and those who are opposed to such a step. It now seems more definitely determined than ever that the final solution of the matter will be a compromise by which only a portion of the canals will be given up at this time and the remainder, if abandoned at all, will first be granted the opportunity of demonstrating their possibilities of usefulness.

His plan is for the appointment of a state inspector vested with such authority as to give him the right to inspect all live stock of any kind at any place and to order the immediate isolation or killing of any found to have this dread disease. He will be able to appoint needed assistants and thus keep in close touch with conditions everywhere. Moreover, it is proposed to so vigorously punish offenders who, with seeming disregard for public health, sell meat of such a character as to demonstrate that it cannot be done with impunity. Talk of an early adjournment still continues in a sporadic way, but there seems no hope of leaving here before the latter part of April. Thus far but Mrs. Catherine Toft, President of the four general bills have gone through Valkrein Association, of Chicago, in a the legislature, while dozens are awaiting action. The time consumed in the discussion of matters of taxation, redistricting and canal abandonment have so eaten up time as to hamper seriously the work to which the general assembly would otherwise have applied itself. No session of recent years has accomplished so little in the way of actual results in such a length of time. The general appropriation bill is yet in the hands of the finance committee and will probably not come out before the early part of next month. After its passage, which ought to be quickly done, the way will be cleared for action on other pressing matters and undoubtedly adjournment will come quickly. The coming of spring weather, with the balmy air and songs of birds, is the most powerful argument which can be advanced for getting through. And yet even with the odor of budding flowers in their nostrils, the members will probably not shake hands for their final 28th of April.

> Funny things often happen in legislative halls. A few days ago a most honest if unsophisticated gentleman dropped into the old capitol building and, after wandering through the house and senate, went into the house washroom. There he saw hanging from a chain a brush and comb and a liberal state. Furnishes a toothbrush free to the members. Guess I'll try to

The state proposes to take hold with turers be compelled to admit inspectheir factories and answer questions as to the condition of employes. Former Common Pleas Judge Ong of Cleveland, who was unique in his methods as a judge, shows equally originality in his methods since. He has prepared two bills affecting the existing jury system of Ohio. One of these bills provides that under certain conditions nine jurors may return a verdict in a civil action. When the jury has been out eight hours and the judge believes it can not agree, he may instruct the return of a verdict agreed to by nine members. The object is to prevent two or three men from preventing the finding of a verdict. His other bill takes the duty of selecting jurors from the auditor, recorder and lerk and places it in the hands of the common pleas court and county treasurer. The treasurer is to select names for a list from his books and submit this to the common pleas judge for inspection and approval. By this method it is hoped to have juries made up only of taxpayers. While there is grave doubt as to the constitutionality of the latter bill, the framers believe any danger in that direction has been avoided by adding the words "or other judicious persons" to the section declaring for a property qualification.

It is the desire of the bankers of the state, as shown through their organization, to have the bank laws of Ohio codified and purely state banks placed under the care of an inspector. This is desired both to protect the depositor and in order that wild-cat and uncertain concerns may not be allowed to prey upon the public to the detriment and bad repute of established and worthy institutions. The plan is for the appointment by the auditor and secretary of state and the attorney general of a superinendent of banks. who shall be under the direction of the auditor of state, and who is, with the aid of deputies, to make regular inspections of state banks. The salary of this official is to be $4,000 a year, borne by the banks themselves without cost to the state.

In case Mr. Painter's bill for canal abandonment is entirely defeated, he proposes to introduce another abolishing the state board of public works and placing the control of the state public lands in the hands of the canal commission, to which body he would add the governor, auditor of state and attorney general. "The board of public works is a useless institution of great cost to the state and ought to be removed as a source of expense to the taxpayers," is Mr. Painter's statement, to which he added, "and I believe it will be."

The Crisis has at last produced an editorial. True, it is somewhat incogood one considering that the man who does the thinking for the paper, like the paper itself, is at sea or wanknown destination. That nobody should know what the journal is driving at is not surprising, as the meaning of most of the matter that it prints has to be guessed at. As experts in the use of language to conceal thought the hired men in the employ of the East Liverpool edition of the Canton News-Democrat have no superiors. The only intelligible statement the Crisis makes in its jumble of words is a lie. But it is not to be expected that a professional prevaricator should tell the truth, trying to do so for the first time in its career. We heartily commend the effort the paper has made to say something. The beginning is so encouraging that in time we may hope to see it attempt the Herculean task of defining its own political policy.

For more than six months the garbage question has been before the city authorities, the subject of wrangling and debate at meetings of the board of health and of the council. It is still apparently as far from a solution as ever. Indeed, since the contract with the Reduction company has lately been annulled, there is no provision or even a pretense of one for the disposal of constantly accumulating refuse. Truly a nice state of affairs in a city of 18,000 inhabitants, and hot weather approaching! Some plan must be put in effect forthwith. The the old garbage furnace, at least temporarily. That can be done, and should be done, while other projects, if any, are being discussed. Inaction is intolerable and inexcusable.

Somebody has evidently been trampof the Democratic dog that does its at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. barking in Canton. The attenuated tail not only shows signs of life, but signs of pain and rage as well. The whole animal is so convulsed that its yelps are audible even in this city. The creature would be deserving of pity had it not pursued a course for months that invited castigation. Now it will look in vain for sympathy.

MEN ARE SCARCE

Get Laborers Enough.

The scarcity of men at the tin mills has almost reached an alarming state. The officials and foremen of the mills never before experienced such difficulty in securing men, especially laborers. For the present it seems enough skilled men are at hand, but it is feared they may become scarce in a few weeks.

The finishing department of the mills is nearly completed and a large number of girls will be in demand next week to enter the pickling department. The only reason that can be assigned for the deficiency of workmen is that there are no men

Another contingent of men such as arrived from down the river during the latter part of December would quickly decrease the demand.

An erroneous impression prevails extends back into the hill 200 feet that because the Rocky mountains have a high elevation the mercury in the thermometer drops down below zero in the winter season and stops there, and that the snow mounts up with the altitude. The fact is that the average precipitation of moisture in the lowlands of the mountain region during the entire year is only 14.15 inches. With such average precipitation there is practically no danger of snow blockades on the railroads, save at a few points exposed to drifts and these points have been amply protected. This is especially true of the lines of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western between Denver and Ogden at all seasons of the year. Facts speak for themselves, and the fact is that travel over "The Scenic Line of the World" has gone on with less interruption from snow blockades during the last ten winters than it has upon the majority of railroads in other localities which are popularly supposed to be more free from such delays than the mountain systems. Washington, March 12.-About 139 members were present last night at the fourth conference of house Republicans, called to consider the question of Cuban reciprocity.

Representative Long, of Kansas, a member of the ways and means committee, opened with an exhaustive argument in favor of the 20 per cent concession advocated by his colleagues of the ways and means committee. The substance of his speech was in part: He argued that the maintenance of a protective tariff was not involved in the proposition of the ways and means committee, but that the policy of reciprocity was A reduction of 20 per cent on Cuban sugar, leaving the duty on such sugar at $1.24 per hundred pounds, would not enable the Cuban, after paying freight rates and cost of refining, to compete with beet sugar in Chicago, Kansas City or Denver. which are the principal markets for

"It would be the part of wisdom for the beet sugar interests to agree to a reasonable concession that would not injure their industry in the remotest degree rather than to be compelled to accept possible annexation in the immediate future, but when it does come, I want it to come by the Grew Out of Proposed Boer Relief free act of the Cuban people."

When Mr. Long finished speaking Mr. Tayler, of Ohio, presented a protest against the plan of the ways and means committee. The protest was drafted at the conference which the Republicans opposed to reciprocity held Monday night. It was in the nature of a manifesto setting out the grounds on which their opposition was based, being largely an amplification of the contention that a reduction of the duty on Cuban reciprocity involved a relaxation of the protective principle. In lieu of the Tawney proposition for a rebate Mr. Taylor offered the following resolution:

"Resolve". First, that we reaffirm

Washington, March 12 .- The house yesterday entered on the consideration of the postoffice appropriation bill, but, as usual, during debate on an appropriation bill the members who spoke devoted themselves to everything except the bill before the house. Early in the day Mr. Thaye:, of Massachusetts, attempted to take advantage of the division among the Republicans on the subject of reciprocity by bringing forward a resolution to investigate reports that the sugar trust would be the chief beneficiary of Cuban reciprocity. He tried to overturn a decision of the speaker in order to secure action on his resolution, but the Republicans came up solidly against such a course, and he was checkmated. Mr. Brantley, Georgia Democrat, made a speech in favor of Cuban reciprocity, and Mr. Meyer, a Louisiana Democrat, one against it. Mr. Hill, of Connecticut, made some remarks on his monetary bill. The feature of the day, however, was a speech by Mr. Burleson, attacking Secretary Hay for declining to request the British authorities to furnish passports to go through the British lines to Rev. Hiram W. Thomas and wife, who desire to go to South Africa to distribute Boer relief funds collected in Illinois. Mr. Hitt, of Illinois, chairman of the for eign affairs committee, made a spir ited reply to Mr. Burleson, charging the whole system, and are guaranteed the Texas member with attempting to prejudice the case before the evidence was in., Mr. Hitt pointed out that relief funds could be distributed

Speech by Mallory-Hoar Against Popular Election of Senators.

Washington, March 12.-For several nours yesterday the senate had the ship subsidy bill under consideration. Mr. Mallory, of Florida, made an extended speech in opposition to the measure. He analyzed the bill carefully and held that there was no good reason for its enactment into law. saying he believed it would not accomplish the results hoped for it by the promoters. His opposition was based biefly on the ground that it would extend the favor of the United States treasury to private individuals and corporations without a just return for the expenditure.

Prior to the consideration of the subsidy measure a lively debate occurred over an effort on the part of Mr. Berry, of Arkansas, to ascertain when the committee on privileges and elections might be expected to report to the senate the resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote of the people. Mr Hoar, of Massachusetts, indicated his vigorous opposition to such a resolution on the ground that it would subvert the fundamental principle upon which the senate was founded.

Feeling For Americans. Berlin, March 12 .- The semi-official North German Gazette, commenting last evening on the departure of Ad miral Prince Henry, of Prussia, from the United States, referred in the warmest terms to the generous hospitality and unvarying courtesy and good will extended to the, emperor's representative, and continued: "In the strengthening of the traditional friendly relations between two great, powerful and progressive nations, in the renewal of the old confidence, we couple in our thoughts. with gratitude, the countless thousands of American men and women who everywhere gave Prince Henry a joyful welcome, coming from sincere hearts. It is just these perfectly spontaneous demonstrations of friendship, coming from all classes of a proud people, that give us confidence that the good feeling which has been engendered and manifested both here and over there by the visit to the land of George Washington will continue its influence on the relations between the German empire and the United States, politically untroubled as they are in any way, to the advantage of both peoples." The National Period of American Literature

BY LORENZO SEARS, LIT. D., Professor of American Literature in Brown University.

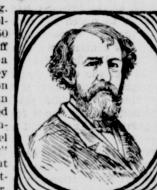

CHERRENCE P. Willis and VIII. - Nathaniel P. Willis and Dayard Taylor.

HERE are names in the history of any literature which become faint ecboes of their former inportance. Once they were shouted by the multitude; now they are recalled as having a half familiar sound and suggesting further inquiry. If a popular vote had been taken in Carrietatatatatatatatatatatatatatatatata the second quarter of the century for the most widely admired writer of emotional verse and of light and graceful prose Nathanial Parker Willis would have received the majority of suffrages. He was another New Englander who drifted into the literary coterie of New York in the years when it was the center of attraction for young writers. Born in Portland, Me., with the advantages of a publisher for a grandfather and the editor of a religious paper for his father, the young student at Yale illustrated the law of heredity in his college course by writing poems almost as precocious as Bryant's and of far greater emotional power. To be sure they were Scriptural in tone, but tradition has it that this was not due to an overreligiousness on the part of the poet himself. Yet the same may be said of Young's "Night Thoughts," that solemn book over which our fathers used to pore and fall asleep in blissful unconsciousness of the somewhat worldly mindedness of the courtly author. Still, there is no good reason why the product of a poet's best impulses should not be taken for what it is worth to the reader in reproducing similar emotions in his own mind. Biography may explain literature, but it need not necessarily qualify it. Accordingly these "Scripture Sketches" of the college youth may be allowed to stand for those better moods of reflection and aspiration which alternate with academic surplusages of animal spirits, for whose effervescence no gymnasium was supplied at Yale in 1825. As offsets to what then took the place of athletics in various devices for keeping a high temperature in the old town Willis could write such verse as "Absalom" and "Jephtha's Daughter."

Literature did not offer so many paths to a college graduate turned loose 75 years ago as in these latter days. Then it was a confident or desperate

youth who dared to trust to the pen for a living. Willis, however, had been commended for his college pieces and had won a publisher's prize of $50 for the best gift book poem. With this send off the recent graduate undertook the editorship of a series of volumes published by that Peter Parley to whom sundry American authors of distinction owed their bringing out. Then The American Magazine was established, to be finally merged into the New York Mirror, to which Willis contributed editorial letters during two years' travel in the old world. These "Pencilings by the Way" were the first valuable specimens of the abundant literature of American travel, often more interesting to the writer than the reader. This writer, however, had the crayon quality in his pen and could put life and picturesqueness into worn paths

and dull statistics. Besides, he was favored with passports as an attache of the American minister at Paris, giving him access to courtly circles in Europe and the east. With these facilities the record of travel made by such an observer was a revelation to those even who had been over the ground and a delight to those who had not. The sale of the "Pencilings" was greatly increased by a virulent review in The Quarterly, and a personal article by Captain Marryat occasioned a meeting for satisfaction.

Four years of residence abroad satisfied this travel and society loving American for awhile, and he took up his abode far from cities and men in his cottage at Glenmary, on the Susquehanna, where he wrote the "Letters From Under a Bridge." Then came the financial reverse which in so many instances has been the spur to easy going loiterers along the highway of letters, driving him back to New York and to work on The Corsair, a weekly journal which had the distinction of employing Thackeray as a contributor before he had grown so great as in the days of "The Newcomes." This paper was soon abandoned for The Evening Mirror, the demands of which undermined his health, resulting after a third voyage to Europe in the establishment of The Home Journal and insuring a more moderate pace in literary labor.

The above particulars have been mentioned to illustrate the life of a man of letters in the second generation of the century. It was the period between the news letter and the journal, with the permanent magazine in its present form still in the distance. Whatever was printed was necessarily brief or cut into short sections if a long story, entailing the reader's impatience or expectancy. A volume of such brevities had usually the same choppy character, with the advantage of being laid down and taken up at odd intervals, a point in favor of a fragmentary and discursive author like Willis. Yet in the course of a lifetime he produced many volumes. To read one-half of them would be worse than a waste of time. People did not lose many hours at a time over them when they were published, since they came out for the most part in weekly installments. On the other hand, if one were stranded in the country with "Hurrygraphs" or "Outdoors at Idlewild" or "People I Have Met" or "Famous Persons and Places" for his only reading he would find more hours pleasantly occupied than with some more pretentious books. The range is wide over many lands, scenes and celebrities. Much light is thrown upon contemporary history. The manners of a bygone period in letters and politics in our own country are graphically depicted. Life in other and older lands is contrasted with the simplicity of republican ways and the scenery of the unbroken wilderness with the artificiality of landscapes that had absorbed the labor of generations-to take a few titles at random from a single volume, beginning with letters from Plymouth, Cape Cod, the Delaware, the Hudson, on Edward Everett, Calhoun and Benton, Fenimore Cooper, Daniel Webster, Irving, Whipple, society and manners in New York, shawl aristocracy and a score of similar home topics about which everybody was surprised to find how much Willis could tell them. He had an artist's eye to see the picturesque in familiar objects and the artist's touch to bring out the unexpected beauty or interest of the commonplace.

One of those who were always ready to acknowledge indebtedness to his literary hospitality was Bayard Taylor, a Pennsylvania youth who was blessed with visions of authorship and travel and troubled with scant means and opportunities. He acquired enough Latin at school to give him a clew to the romance languages and obtained the technical education of a printing office. To these he added the larger education of a literary tramp in foreign countries, writing letters to newspapers for his support, and after two years returned to New York for fresh orders. The metropolis was still keeping good its title to the purest literary atmosphere in the country, if not the highest. What remained of the old Knickerbocker school was doing fair work, and new material was added from time to time. Aside from those already spoken of were Morris, Hoffman, the Duyckincks and "certain women of their company," besides sundry Bohemian encampments on the borderland between aspiration and performance, all together causing some one to define the Knickerbocker school as "composed of authors whom we all remember as forgotten." To the survivors Willis, Griswold and Hoffman introduced Taylor, and within three months he had engagements to write for four journals, besides a place as chief of the literary department of The Tribune. He was at home in this diversified occupation, writing 15 hours a day, turning his hand to anything demanded for the daily press, doing his work so carefully and well that he won a higher position and became a stockholder in the company. California and Mexico next gratified his love of travel and adventure, and an invitation to deliver a commencement poem at Harvard came as a tribute to his poetic talent. Then came the inevitable abuse which follows success like its shadow, and because he happened to be the winner of a prize song for Jenny Lind and 752 other contestants were not be began to wish he had never been born-a poet. Nevertheless he published "Book of Romances, Lyrics and Songs" and started for a long journey to Europe and the orient, during which he wrote letters to The Tribune and became the great American traveler, as much at home in Damascus as in New York.

As an outcome of his journeyings he published in one season his "Journey to Central Africa," "The Lands of the Saracen" and "Poems of the Orient." "A Visit to India, China and Japan" and "Summer In Sweden" followed.

Afterward he tried his hand at novel writing, producing four, of which "The Story of Kennet" is the best and "John Godfrey's Fortunes" nearest to the writer's personal experiences as a literary worker in New York. He also attempted the drama under the titles of "The Masque of the Gods." "The Prophet" and "Prince Deukalion." Poems he was always writing in his ambition to become a poet rather than be known as a traveler and journalist. It is not the first instance or the last of mistaking one's real vocation.

Taylor left in the abundance of his writings much that instructs and entertains and delights. Doubtless the majority of readers would prefer the multiform result of his labor to greater excellence in a single department of it. As journalist, traveler, translator, dramatist and poet, his range is wide enough and sufficiently diversified to relieve his writing from monotony and retain the reader's attention. Beyond this each one will find before reading far something that will appeal to his love of nature, his interest in things and lands remote or his sense of poetic values. The lesson of all this long and active life is best summed up by Taylor himself: "'Tis not for idle ease we pray, but freedom for our task divine."

New York, March 12.-Wall street sentiment experienced a sense of ralief when the reports of the early London market were received. The calmness of the London market led to some covering by shorts in this market, which were put out late on his own use funds of the bank. An Monday in hope of covering at a attachment for $90,000 was issued profit on London selling Tuesday against his property Dec. 27, 1901. morning. There were renewed movement in some of the minor specialties wich have been favorites for some time past. The news of the deposit at the subtreasury of $1,250,000 in gold for telegraphic transfer to San Francisco in connection with the traction merger there called renewed attention to our own domestic money market situation. The selling movement which followed threw the market into irregularity for the rest of the day. The earlier gains were generally wiped out by the first selling on this news. There were some subsequent recoveries, but the market closed heavy in tone and without animation. Of the day's special movements, that in Colorado Southern stocks continued notable. Busy persons, forced to defend themselves from interminable talkers who have little to say, can appreciate a hint to which Henry IV. of France once resorted. A parliamentary deputy called upon him and made a long speech.

The king listened patiently for a time, then he decided that his visitor would do well to condense his remarks. He took him by the hand and led him to where they could see the gallery of the Louvre.

DISTILLED WATER.

It Is the Purest Best and Only Absolutely Safe Water.

Boil a gallon of water until there is but a quart left, and the quart will contain all the impurities of the gallon and be nearly four times as imserving on the Trentvale equalizing table and mineral, except the gases thrown off-will be reduced to one solid mass. The water which is evaporated and passed off as steam is very nearly pure. But, you will say, it kills the dangerous germs. We will suppose it does, but their remains furnish cutta road equalizing board was not material for bacterial life to feed upon. Do you relish the idea of eating in food or drinking their dead and decomposing bodies, which poison the water by their decomposition? The fact is scientific investigation has proved that boiling only kills the feeblest, the least injurious, germs.

Try a simple experiment. Put unboiled city water in one bottle and the same that has been boiled for half an and keep in the sun or in a warm place for a week or longer and note the difference. The unboiled water will show a marked depreciation in looks, taste and smell, but that which has been boiled will be so much worse in these respects that no one would think of using it. In comparison with these you can submit a properly sealed bottle of pure distilled water to the same conditions, and at the end of a year it will be found to be as pure, sweet and perfect as when first bottled.

The purest and best and the only absolutely safe water to use for drinking and the preparation of all foods and artificial drinks is that produced by distillation, but the most imperfect one produces a water far superior in purity and healthfulness to the very best spring waters under their most proach to it in purity is rainwater. which is distilled water of nature's clean surfaces, in uninhabited sections. where the air is pure and uncontaminated by smoke, dust, city and factory gases, etc.-Sanitarian:
